DEPARTMENT OF VEGETABLE SCIENCE

DR YS PARMAR UNIVERSITY OF HORTICULTURE & FORESTRY

NAUNI, SOLAN (HP) 173 230

INTRODUCTION

The ICAR, New Delhi has identified the Department of Vegetable Science, College of Horticulture, Dr YS Parmar University of Horticulture and Forestry, Nauni, Solan (HP) as a Centre for Advanced Faculty Training in Horticulture (Vegetables). The CAFT is entrusted with the organization of specialized and advanced training for the State Agricultural University teachers/ ICAR scientists to update their knowledge and skills. The main objective of training courses conducted under CAFT is Human Resource Development in the discipline of Vegetable Science within the country. This centre is organizing an advanced training course of 21 days on "Breeding vegetable crops for climate resilience" w.e.f. February 05-25, 2025. Hopefully, the course would be very useful, interactive and the participants would be greatly benefitted.

Vegetables are protective foods embedded with vitamins, micronutrients, pharmaceutical and nutraceutical compounds which are necessary for human health and provide livelihood security through employment but the recent developments in the field of production and breeding of commercial vegetables and rare exotic vegetables and dissemination of the latest technology generated among the stakeholders is of paramount importance, usually extended high temperatures, limited soil moisture, reduced availability of irrigation water, repeated flooding, increased acidity or salinity and soil erosion, high wind speed, increase in occurrence of hail and thunderstorms, frost damage and tsunamis etc. are the major limiting factors for optimum productivity besides the quality of the produce. This training is highly relevant for helping the scientific community in enriching their knowledge about the breeding of vegetable crops especially development of vegetable varieties for high yield, early maturity, resistance to biotic and abiotic stresses and quality attributes will be taken up.
